Three Brothers at Market.

To the Editor: Three brothers, A. B and C. went to a market. There's a song which runs: "Rard times come Each wanted to buy a horse. When they arrived they found that there was only one horse left for sale, and when they were informed of the price it they saw that none of them had money enough to buy the horse. Each knew how much money the others had. So said A to B: "Lend me one-half of your money and, together with mine. I can just pay for that horse." But is Now, we find good people in the thorny path of said "No." and, turning to C. continued: "Lend me one-third of your money and, together with mine, I can just pay for the horse." But C said: And many mouths are empty in a land with "No. I would like to buy that horse myself." And then made this proposition to A: "Lend me one-fourth of your money and, together with much did that horse cost and how much money did each one of the brothers have? Fruit Sauce.

Mash a quart of ripe fruit, heat it, sift a cupful of sugar over it and set away; if the fruit is very sweet less sugar will be required. About ten minutes before the sauce is needed set it over the fire and stir constantly; when heated nearly to boiling, turn it about the base of the pudding, which has been placed in a deep platter. If the pudding boiler has a tube in the centre, as it usually has, there is, of course, a hole in the centre of the pudding, and this may be filled with the fruit sauce, which is, by-the-bye, as attractive in appearance as it is delicious in taxte.

A Walk for Women to Imitate. A writer on the great need of the conservation of the nerve forces of the modern woman advises her to force herself to move slowly even if in a hurry, and to try in walking to imitate the gait of the city policeman, adding that there is no danger that she will succeed since the disinclination of the official defender of the peace to hasten his steps even in seasons of extreme need has become proverbial, and his measured, swinging gait seldom varies. The nerv-ous woman is advised to keep still outwardly even to her finger tips if she would acquire rest and quiet of mind, not its definite purpose and aim.
